Want Buoys in Curriomen. A letter has been sent to the lighthouse board at Baltimore by the officers of the steamer Harry Randall requesting that two spar buoys be placed on the sand bar at the entrance to Curricomen bay, Va. It is stated in the petition that when the nights are dark it is very difficult, even with the aid of a searchlight, to locate the bushes, placed by the steamboat men to mark the shoal water, and as a steamboat goes in and out of the bay six times each week they say it should be marked with buoys that can be seen.

ARMSTRONG MANUAL TRAINING SCHOOL.

SCHOOL YEAR BEGINS

Half a Hundred Thousand Pupils Return to Study.

THE TEACHERS BUSY

SCARCITY OF ANTHRACITE COAL FOR HEATING PURPOSES.

Buildings Occupied This Year for the First Time-The Training Schools.

The long and happy days of summer vacation ended, half a hundred thousand school children of the city will return to their books Monday morning at 9 o'clock. For the past six weeks the repair corps of the District government has been working indefatigably to put the various school houses of the District into the very best possible condition for the reception of the army of pupils. The Commissioners of the District were until recently much perturbed over the question of coal for the school furnaces, but have now secured 2,000 tons of bituminous coal and coke, which will keep the fires going from the first touch of Jack Frost until the time of Thanksgiving, the last of November.

A very persistent rumor has been going the rounds to the effect that the schools School and one in the Morgan. Additional would not open until after the encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, which is to be held here the second week of October. There has never been any foundation for this talk, however, and the schools will pen on schedule time and continue open hroughout the encampment. It is probable, however, that the educational authorities will follow the lead of the President of the United States and the District Commissioners in closing the departments October 8, the day of the great parade, and will close the schools also in order that the children may witness the mighty pageant of the Teachers Very Busy.

The school authorities have been occupied of late preparing for the annual fall opening. School books and supplies have been pretty well distributed at the various buildings throughout the District, and the teachbursting varicose veins prevented by applying elastic hosiery of proper tension; also trusses, orthopedic apparatuses, crutches, rubber goods, razors, knives, sc.sbut in the main the teachers will again go over the fields with which they are so familiar and through which they so ably conduct the little men and women of the community. Cards of admission have been is-sued by the thousands during the past week. The children who have been to school before, take on new duties this fall as a result of promotions to the next higher grade. A few in each section remain behind their comrades to make up the delinquencies of the last season. These have a new determination to do their best and if possible to overhaul those who now leave them behind. grades of the grammar schools the timid little boys and girls who are just beginning their school career will on Monday more ing make an acquaintance with "teacher," whom each and every one of them will learn to dearly love before the session is a month

At the high schools the graduates of last June will be missed. But filling out the rester of each of these institutions will be the heavy installments from the eight grades of the graded schools, who are just beginning their four years of the higher training granted by the public system. In the manual training schools, the fines and most magnificently equipped institutions the city has ever known in its public school history, the workers with muscle as well as with brain will take up their la-bors amid surroundings and conveniences such as any community might well be

The Authorized Schedule.

The school authorities have made out a schedule which it is desired that the children shall follow Monday morning. It is important that all the children should be made acquainted with this schedule, and it is herewith given in full:

"All pupils in advanced classes will report for enrollment at 9 a.m. All pupils having "conditions" to remove will be e amined at their several schools at 9 a.m. "At the same hour all persons from out-side schools desiring to enter the advanced classes of the high schools will be examined at the Central High School; those for the Manual Training School at the William McKinley School. "All pupils entering the high and manual training schools from the eighth grades will report at their several schools for enrollment at 11 a.m.

"Tuesday, September 23, at 9 a.m., an examination for entrance to the several white high schools, including the Business School, will be held at the Central High School, 7th and O streets northwest. All candidates for this examination are required to confer with the director of high schools at his office in the Central High School on or before Monday, September 22. "At the same hour a like examination for entrance to the M Street High School will entrance to the M Street High School will be held in that building. All candidates must confer with the principal of that school on or before Monday, September 22.

"At the same hour, 9 a.m., Tuesday, September 23, examinations for entrances to the William McKinley and General Armstrong Manual Training Schools will be held in the building of those schools. All candidates for these examinations must confer with the respective principals on or before Monday, September 22. No pupils who have been attending the graded schools of the city will be permitted to take these examinations without a written order from examinations without a written order from the superintendent of the schools."

Teachers' meetings are being held this afternoon in the various high school buildings, where the staffs are being organized and the work of the school term being mapped out according to the curriculum pre scribed by the board of education.

The School Enrollment. The enrollment in the schools last year was in the neighborhood of 47,000 pupils. It is estimated that there will this year be an increase of about 900 pupils. An increase of between 800 and 900 was noted last year, and is about the normal increase expected from year to year in a growing companying and adjoining shops, is one of in each detail of its construction. It is expected that the enrollment here during the coming term will be close to 400 pupils. The course is one covering four years, just as is the case in the other high schools, for the manual training institutions are also known as technical high schools and are classed on the plane with the higher educational establishments. There is to be a two years' course for boys and girls who are unable to take the full course of four years. The General Armstrong Manufal Training School, on P street between 1st and 30 streets northwest, is to the colored children of the city what the McKinley school is to the white. The Armstrong school, like the McKinley, has just been completed and is as thorough in every respect. Both buildings represent the best thoughts of architects interested in school works.

Other New Structures.

Other new school buildings to be occupied Monday are the Emery, a twelve-room building in Eckington; four-room buildings in Kenilworth and Petworth; the Morgan, eight rooms, on Florida avenue, between 17th and 18th streets northwest, named Commissioner: Syphax, eight rooms, South Washington, on Half street, between N and O streets, named after the late William Syphax, school trustee, and the Langston eight rooms, on P street, between North Capitol and 1st streets, named after the late John M. Langston. These new buildings will provide accommodations for 2,600 more pupils and will result in doing away number of the half-day schools which were made necessary because of limited space. All the new structures are provided with modern chairs and desks, which can be adjusted to the size of the child.

The Kindergarten System. The increase of $5,000 in the appropriation this year for kindergartens has enabled the superintendent to establish two new kindergartens, one in the Emery kindergartens will be provided at Langdon. Congress Heights and Tenleytown. A manual training school is also to be established in Tenleytown. A new cooking school will be installed in the Emery, in Eckington, and probably at Congress Heights. The old St. Ann Church edifice at Tenleytown, purchased last year by the government, will be fitted for manual training and the teaching of cooking.

Congress at its last session appropriated $2.500 for planes for new schools, the first time an appropriation has been specifically made for musical instruments. Each of the new buildings will have a piano con Heretofore such instruments have been purchased for the various buildings through funds raised by the pupils and teachers.

New Tender for River Forts.

The officers stationed at Fort Washington artillery station have been trying for the past year to have a launch, larger than the little Col. Hamilton, now in service at the fort, assigned to Fort Washington as a dispatch boat. It is now stated that their efforts will be successful and by the first of next month it is expected the new boat will be here. She is said to be forty feet long and is quite fast and will be used to transport the officers and men to and from the fort and this city and to carry supplies. Owing to the lack of speed, Hamilton, the tender now in service at the fort, has made Alexadria the end of her trips, but the new launch will make daily trips to this city.

REPORT OF RECEIVERS.

Company's Affairs. The receivers of the Standard Butterine Company, Messrs. E. Quincy Smith, E. Southard Parker, D. W. Baker and D. W. O'Donoghue, have reported to the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia that since the affairs of the company were placed in the hands of receivers, June 27 last, sufficient money has been collected to pay claims aggregating $35,128.20, and to leave a balance in cash of $21,123.20. The court is informed that the plant was continued in operation from the time it went into the hands of the receivers until the new butterine law went into effect; that all supplies which had been contracted for were used to prevent the stockholders from suffering loss; that interest on the first mortgage has been paid, and monthly payments of $1,000 have been made on cars contracted for before the time of the receivership. Further, the receivers state that care has been exercised to prevent the filing of any claims against the company which might result in attachments and legal entanglements, and every effort has been made to close the accounts which are due to the company.

EXCURSIONS.

The special Friday and Saturday evening excursions to Old Point and Norfolk given by the Norfolk and Washington Steamboat Company continue popular despite the lateness of the season. These trips afford exthe most complete institutions of its kind ceptional opportunities for those who dein any public school system. Its cost was sire to spend a few days out of town beabout $200,000, and great pains were taken fore settling in their city homes. Tickets fore settling in their city homes. Tickets are sold at reduced rates and are good to return, leaving Old Point and Norfolk Sunday and Monday evenings. The steamers of this line lack nothing to make the sail down the river enjoyable. They are heated by steam, lighted by electricity and have ex-cellent cafes. They leave the wharf, foot of 7th street, at 6:30 p.m. and reach Norfolk early the following morning. Daily connections are made there with Old Dominion liners for New York and with Merchant and Miners' steamships for Boston.

Tomorrow at 3 o'clock the steamer Chas. Macalester will make another one of those delightful sails of forty miles down the Potomac and return, giving all who go a continuous river ride of eighty miles without making a stop. Returning, the steamer will reach home about 8 o'clock p. m. The scenery along the river and the evening sunset at this time of year are magnificent. The cafe on the steamer will serve meals and lunches during the entire run and refreshments can be had at city prices.

ings at 4 p.m. Seventeen vintage-seasons preceded the present one, in which Chris. Xander pressed rear of his Mass. ave. warehouse. In that presshouse fourteen years ago he, the first, made sweet wine of Port character. Others followed. It is to Mr. Xander that Virginia owes thanks for having initiated that in dustry. Activity in the winery this season began by converting into must the lves Seedling grapes. These being of superlative quality, Chris. Xander's 1902 Ives Claret, after years of keeping, cannot fail to develop into a vintage wine of note. The Norton Seedling grapes are the next to be crushed. Up to 1898 these were supplied by one large vineyard only. Gradually greater quantities were needed. At present the product of seven choice Virginia plantations of rien fron oxide soil provide the material requisite to fill the gap in the storage of successive vintages of Chris. Xander's Norton Claret and his Pride of Va. Port. Both these wines, of high medicinal virtue, by reason of their abundant, grand ferric element, are in enorfrom grip and typhoid fever in this city, but throughout the Union. The Paris exposition jury in 1900 put the stamp of approval on both wines by the award of a medal. Not to a small degree has Chris. Xander's success contributed to improve the lately somewhat dejected condition of the grape grow-
